AI-Driven Research Administration: Enhancing Efficiency and Insight

As research institutions face increasing complexity in grant management, compliance, data tracking, and reporting, the demand for smarter, more efficient administrative solutions is growing. This presentation explores how artificial intelligence (AI) is transforming the field of research administration—streamlining processes, improving decision-making, and unlocking new insights.

Join us in learning about current and emerging AI tools being applied across the research administration lifecycle, including how it is used in the research office, and its use for analytics.
